

EDITOR – Artichoke Magazine

The publication

Published quarterly, Artichoke is about interiors, architecture, design, objects and people. The magazine has a policy of independent editorial and is the national magazine of the Design Institute of Australia. Artichoke is a founding partner of the prestigious Interior Design Awards.

The position

We are offering a full time position based in the company's Port Melbourne office. The successful applicant will join a young, enthusiastic and dedicated team. The role involves all aspects of making magazines.

The successful applicant

The person appointed to this position must be able to lead the development of this highly regarded specialist design publication; represent Artichoke and Architecture Media to the readership, professional bodies and advertisers; write about and comment on design, architecture, art and related topics for a professional audience; source, commission and edit articles; direct the planning, design and layout of the publication, and contribute to the commercial success of the magazine in print and web forms.

We are looking for someone who has:

- Design related qualifications or demonstrated knowledge
- Excellent professional networks appropriate to the role
- Demonstrated writing and copy editing skills
- A good sense of magazine design and presentation
- Excellent interpersonal skills
- Relevant industry experience
- Proven project management skills and commitment.

Interstate and international travel may be required.

Knowledge of Word, InDesign and Photoshop would be advantageous.
